PUBLIC PRESENTATION · 2027

Put artists in front of the public. Pay them to be there.

One public presentation of Bitcoin for the Arts in 2027: artists on site and paid, a production team on the floor, and the display we already own, built, run, and struck properly. This project is funded on its own and is not part of the program-year request.

WHAT WE DID IN 2026

In September 2026 we presented Bitcoin Arts Park at the Midwest Bitcoin Summit in Columbus, Ohio. Live music on the Expo Stage, a youth theatre performance, a painter working live over two days, filmmakers and a cinema program, a culture panel, and a silent auction and raffle that raised money for artists. We built it on our own display and paid for the floor ourselves. This budget is scoped from those actual invoices.

HOW THE MONEY IS USED

Line	What it pays for	Amount
Artists	Fees for the performers and exhibiting artists on site, paid in bitcoin	$6,000
Production team	The crew that builds the floor, runs the stage and sound, and keeps the schedule	$6,000
Installation and strike labor	Venue-contracted labor to install and dismantle the display. At Midwest this line was about $8,500.	$8,500
Freight and warehouse	Shipping the display both ways, advance warehouse receiving, and storage between events	$3,500
Travel and lodging	Artists and production on site	$3,500
Insurance and print	Event coverage, signage, and display materials	$2,000
Contingency	Unplanned costs on the floor. Reported if unused.	$500
Request	One presentation in 2027	$30,000

Labor and freight are the lines that move the most. If the venue donates the space and lets our own crew install, those costs fall. We will report any amount not spent and propose moving it to artist grants.

BITCOIN ARTS PARK, COLUMBUS, 2026

Ainsley Costello and her band on the Expo Stage. Shipwreck Sean painting live over two days. Short North Stage on the Expo Stage. Midwest Bitcoin Summit, September 23 to 24, 2026.

WAYS TO FUND IT

The full presentation, $30,000. Presenting credit on site and in every report.

The artists, $6,000. Every performer and exhibiting artist on the bill, paid.

The stage, $6,000. The production team that builds and runs the floor.

In kind. Freight, lodging, print, insurance, or crew, credited the same way as cash.

DONE MEANS

One public date. Every artist on the bill paid and named. The display built, run, and struck. A public recap with photos and the final budget against this one.

WHAT WE REPORT

The public date and place, the artists paid and the amount, the final cost of each line against this budget, and the recap. If a line is not finished, we say so.
